Johor poised to become economic powerhouse

METRO NEWS

Monday, 19 Feb 2018

By Zazali Musa

Iskandar Malaysia's economic growth corridor will benefit from the influx of local and foreign investments.

JOHOR has the right ecosystem and is moving on the right track in developing, positioning and transforming itself as the new economic powerhouse in the southern region.

The next 10 years, dubbed as the "Golden Decade" for Johor, will propel the southernmost state in the peninsula in terms of development, progress and economic growth.

The progress and development taking place in south Johor, where Iskandar Malaysia is located and is being transformed into an international metropolis, is the best example of how Johor can achieve its mission and vision.

The Johor government has experienced tremendous development in the last decade in Iskandar Malaysia, thanks to its initiatives and efforts.

Launched on Nov 4, 2006, the country's first economic growth corridor - Iskandar Malaysia - is spread over 2,217 sq km, and is three times bigger than Singapore and two times the size of Hong Kong.

Since its inception, it received RM253bil in investments as of Dec 31, 2017, and targets to achieve RM383bil when the economic corridor reaches maturity in 2025.

Johor Poised to Become Economic Powerhouse

The next 10 years, dubbed as the "Golden Decade" for Johor, will propel the southernmost state in the peninsula in terms of development, progress and economic growth

Iskandar is the best model on how development of an economic growth corridor in the country.... said Johor Menteri Besar Datuk Seri Mohamed Khaled Nordin.

Johor poised to become economic powerhouse - Metro News | The Star Online

While progress and development in Iskandar Malaysia is only confined to south Johor, the state government wants to bring development to other areas beyond Iskandar Malaysia too.

Concerted, collective and continuous efforts are needed from all stakeholders in Johor to fully support the mammoth task undertaken by the state government to take the state to the next level.

Menteri Besar Datuk Seri Mohamed Khaled Nordin said Johor must move forward in its quest to become the new economic powerhouse in the region.

He said while it would not be an easy task ahead as there could be many challenges and obstacles along the way, it could only be achieved if all Johoreans played their part.

Khaled said Johor highly appreciated the contributions made by Malaysians from other states in the development and progress of Johor.

He said while Johor embraced the Bangsa Johor concept, they also welcomed those from other states who had made Johor their home.

"Johoreans and non-Johoreans are contributing directly and indirectly to the progress of the state," Khaled said.

He said Malaysians from other states living in Johor had also benefitted from the development and would continue to do so in the coming years as Johor progresses.

Iskandar Malaysia is the best model on how development of an economic growth corridor in the country took place with the participation of all stakeholders.

The state government needs to translate the new key economic sectors in the next 10 years under its development plan to reality and enhance the existing traditional economic activities along the way.

Johor is fortunate due to its close proximity to Singapore, an international trade and financial centre.

It is a well-known fact that Johor and Singapore depend on each other economically, with thousands of Malaysians crossing over to the republic daily to work.

At the same time, Singaporeans love to sleep and dine in Johor Barue due to the strong Singapore dollar, with many of them owning properties especially in Iskandar Malaysia.

Interest in Johor from domestic and foreign investors remains strong despite uncertainties and challenges in the global economic growth.

The state government has taken the right step by diversifying its economic portfolio in view of the challenges posed by the global economic situation.

Oil and gas, bio-economy, green technology, halal-based products, hospitality and services and logistics have been identified as some of the new economic sectors to spearhead Johor's growth.

Johor tourism, trade and commerce minister Datuk Lim Siew Kiang said gone were the days when Johor could depend only on a particular economic sector or activity.

"Diversifying the economy will help us achieve our mission and vision to position and develop Johor as the new regional economic powerhouse," he said.

Johor is no longer depending on a particular economic sector such as manufacturing, and over the past decade has diversified its economic portfolio and ventured into value-added investments.

The state has already established itself as the manufacturing hub in the southern region.

Statistics from the Malaysian Investment Development Authority show that Johor attracted RM92bil in investments in the manufacturing sector, the highest in the country from 2012 to 2016.

The state also received a shot in the arm from the Federal Government with multi-billion ringgit mega projects to be implemented in the state within the next five to 10 years.

Malaysian Digest, New Straits Times
22 November 2017

ISKANDAR PUTERI: The Sultan of Johor, Sultan Ibrahim Sultan Iskandar, today officially proclaimed Iskandar Puteri as Johor's second city, and Malaysia's 14th.

Formerly known as the Johor Baru Central Municipal Council (MPJBT), the council will now be known as the Iskandar Puteri City Council (MBIP). Iskandar Puteri is now Johor's second city, after Johor Baru.

The ruler made the proclamation at a ceremony in Medini Iskandar. He was accompanied by the Permaisuri of Johor Raja Zarith Sofiah Sultan Idris Shah, and the Tunku Mahkota Johor Tunku Ismail Sultan Ibrahim as well as other royal family members.

Also present were Johor Menteri Besar Datuk Seri Mohamed Khaled Nordin and Urban Well-being, Housing and Local Government Minister Tan Sri Noh Omar.

In his speech, Khaled said the proclamation of Iskandar Puteri as a city is proof of the rapid development in the area.

"This development have and will continue to change the area's landscape and transform Iskandar Puteri into one of the most dynamic growth areas in Malaysia," said Khaled.

He said the name Iskandar Puteri also bears historic significance for Johor as it is the name of the new administrative capital of the state after it was relocated from Teluk Belanga, Singapore and later changed to Johor Baru in 1866.

"The name was chosen and consented by His Majesty Sultan Ibrahim himself. It is very fitting considering that it is located in the current administrative capital of Johor, which is Kota Iskandar," said Khaled.

He said Iskandar Puteri bears strategic importance for the competitiveness of Johor and Malaysia as all the high-impact economic activities that would make Johor the new economic power in Malaysia are centred in this region.

"It has a big role to play as it must be the catalyst for all these big plans and ideas. If it plays its role effectively and successfully, Iskandar Puteri will be in a class of its own and would compete with other successful and well-known cities like Dubai, Doha, Tokyo, Seoul, London, Sydney and others," said Khaled.

Iskandar Puteri is Now Johor's Second City and Malaysia's 14th

"This development have and will continue to change the area's landscape and transform Iskandar Puteri into one of the most dynamic growth areas in Malaysia," said Johor Menteri Besar Datuk Seri Mohamed Khaled Nordin.

He said Iskandar Puteri bears strategic importance for the competitiveness of Johor and Malaysia as all the high-impact economic activities that would make Johor the new economic power in Malaysia are centred in this region.
